

BEQUESTS AND LEGACIES

The University of Queensland is one of Australia's premier learning and research institutions today, because of the extraordinary generosity of private benefactors over the past 100 years. Bequests made many years ago continue to provide for pioneering research and teaching posts, fund student scholarships and prizes, contribute to world-class facilities and property, and memorialise loved-ones to the present day.

Your bequest is a powerful and lasting legacy for future students, scientists and researchers at The University of Queensland. With your bequest, UQ will go on providing life-changing scholarships, engaging in revolutionary research, and discovering innovative solutions to the complex problems of our world.

Giving to The University of Queensland in your Will is your opportunity to create a remarkable future for coming generations. The wide range of research and education underway at UQ means a bequest is an effective and easy way to contribute to almost any field of endeavour or knowledge, and to leave this world a better place.

If you are considering making a bequest to UQ and would like specific Will-wording, UQ's Bequest Manager would be delighted to work with you or your advisor to ensure your gift will do exactly what you intend. We would also be delighted to provide you with general bequest clauses to take to your solicitor.

If you have already made a provision for UQ in your Will, we invite you to contact us so that we may thank you and welcome you as a member of the University's community of benefactors. If you prefer to remain anonymous, your intentions and gift will be kept confidential.

Please call UQ's Bequest Manager on (07) 3364 3904, or email bequest@uq.edu.au, for an obligation-free and informative chat.
